"Ha'apalah Ships" were vacation ships organized by the Zionist movement for Jews from around the world.

True

False

The Ha'apalah was the movement for the entry of Jews into the Land of Israel by sea and land, which was organized by the Hebrew settlement during the British Mandate period from 1934 until the establishment of the State of Israel in 1948. The immigration ships were forced to arrive illegally to Israel due to the severe immigration restrictions of the British which limited the number of immigrants per year. For Jews who wanted to come to Israel and fled World War II and the Nazis in Europe, as well as Holocaust survivors after the war, this was the only way to enter the Land of Israel.
